"Tis said that long ago in the misty Welsh forest lived a kingdom of magical fairies. Their queen and her fairy warriors needed steeds that could carry them o’er great distances, so they created an enchanted breed of little dogs. ’Tis said that if you look carefully on the shoulders of a corgi, you can still see the marks left by the wee fairy saddles.